Davis County WIC Program Announces New Income Guidelines

(Clearfield, Utah) – The Davis County Health Department’s WIC Program has released new income guidelines effective July 1, 2013. These income amounts have increased from previous years’ guidelines which makes more families eligible for the program.

WIC (Women, Infants and Children) is a public health supplemental nutrition program provided at no cost to pregnant women, new mothers, breastfeeding women, and children under the age of 5. “WIC provides monthly food packages including whole grains, low fat dairy products, fruits and vegetables and baby foods,” said Lewis Garrett, director of the Davis County Health Department. “The program strives to improve health by providing supplemental nutritional foods, breastfeeding support, nutrition education and referrals to community resources.”

According to Marcie Johnson, manager of the county’s WIC program, “If your family does not exceed the income for household size listed in the chart, you may qualify. In figuring family size, consider the following: A pregnant woman may count the unborn baby as a separate family member and any child under 5 on Medicaid will qualify.”
